Teaching, learning and assessment strategies	You will be taught by a team of experienced staff who have researched and published widely within the subject areas of Football Coaching, Sports Development, Performance Analysis, Sport Science and Sport and Physical Activity Leadership. Many of our staff draw upon their own work experience with organizations such as The Football Association and Sport England to intellectually and practically engage, challenge and fully develop your own learning. Course delivery will use a combination of lectures, seminars, practical workshops, field trips and case studies. There will also be opportunities for you to experience real world football coaching projects as well engage with industry-specific guest speakers. You will be required to undertake a variety of assessment that vary depending upon the learning outcomes of the unit delivered. The range of assessment styles includes: written reports and essays, oral presentations, e-portfolios, phase tests, collaborative projects. In addition, you will undertake practical assessments related to the design, planning and delivery aspects relevant to a wide variety of football coaching projects providing opportunity to develop and demonstrate critical analysis, problem solving, communication styles needed in coaching. Assessment of these activities will be based on tasks which develop vocational skills, underpinned by subject knowledge, requiring higher levels of cognition in the upper levels of the course. As you progress through the levels of study the marking criteria for all assessment styles undertaken will be that much more rigorous, with the expectation you progressively demonstrate a more theory driven understanding of football coaching issues and practices. The workshop approach of the teaching and learning strategy enables formative assessment to be ongoing. Units combines formal summative (e.g. individual and group-based assignments) and informal formative (e.g. reflective tasks) modes of assessment, drawing also upon peer review and peer support techniques, staggered periodically throughout the units so as to emphasise and support incremental individual student learning as process
